Introduction

Website Sati:Space to Reflect dirancang untuk membantu remaja umat Buddha memahami sati Buddhis dalam pengembangan kualitas spiritual mereka dengan cara yang relevan. Website ini hadir karena sampai saat ini, penjelasan mengenai sati Buddhis cenderung disampaikan melalui teks formal dan akademis, sehingga sulit diakses oleh remaja yang sedang mencari arah dan membangun jati diri.

Berdasarkan temuan, remaja cenderung menyukai informasi yang singkat, visual, dan interaktif. Maka dari itu, dengan menghadirkan penyampaian yang visual, terstruktur, dan interaktif, website ini berupaya menjadi sumber kredibel bagi remaja untuk mengenal sati sesuai ajaran Buddha

Big Idea

Walking a balanced path through memories toward a safe space for reflecting on past imbalance

Keyword: Proportional, Encouraging, Nostalgic

Tone of voice: empathetic, informative, encouraging

Proportional

Encouraging

Nostalgic

Concept

- Tema besar website seperti roll film
- Menggunakan perpaduan warna warm dan dull untuk menampilkan kesan encouraging serta nostalgic.
- Mengkombinasi typography script dan sans serif untuk memberikan kesan personal dan proposional
- Gaya visual grainy untuk menggambarkan karakteristik memori yang samar
- Menggunakan multicolumn grid
- Jenis layout card style, split screen, dan hierarchical
- Menggunakan blur appear animation

What they say after practicing their sati

"I never like my rough on"

"I feel calmer and not easily be emotional"

- Metta

"Sati made me notice things I never thought about before. It's like my brain finally slowed down enough for me to see what's going on"

- Selvie

"don't get overwhelmed as easily anymore. When things pile up, I remember to breathe and stay present"

- Mini

"I feel way more sincere when doing other religious activities now. Not just because I 'should', but because I actually feel connected, happy"

With Sati

Simple Awareness

Sati helps you to be in the present moment without any judgement. For example, noticing long or short breaths, body posture, or feelings of pleasure, pain, etc.

Protective Awareness

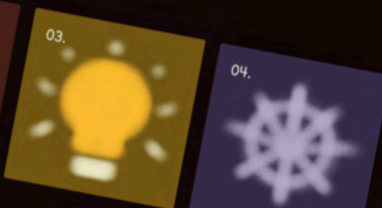

Sati adds a layer of vigilance that guards the senses, preventing unwholesome tendencies from entering like hatred, greed, etc that harmful to you.

Sati practice goes beyond meditation. It can be done anytime without special occasion. Every time you bring your mind back and focus on one thing at a time, you are quietly building up sati.

1. Adjust to the right posture

Sit with two legs crossed. The back is straight. The eyes are closed. The hands are resting loosely one on top of the other, palms upward, in the lap.

2. Counting Breaths

Breathe in, breathe out, and silently count "one". On the following breath count "two". Continue counting for ten full breaths. Then start again.

Practice 5 Buddhist Principles

About

Practice

Share Practice

Sati practice goes beyond meditation. It can be done anytime without special occasion. Every time you bring your mind back and focus on one thing at a time, you are quietly building up sati.

These principles are meant to help you in a practical way. Here, sati is needed to complement these five rules constantly.

Refrain from taking life

This principle tells you to appreciate all of living beings. Thus, you shouldn't kill anything that lives, including animals.

Refrain from taking what is not given

This principle tells you not to steal, since it is a clear way of harming others and causing suffering. Taking what is not given can also be read to discourage exploitation and taking advantage of people.

Refrain from having too much sensual pleasure

This principle tells you not to indulge yourself in adultery or being unfaithful. This includes looking at someone in a lustful way.

Refrain from lying or gossiping

This principle tells you to say things that are useful, considered and well-meaning. As well as telling you to be a good listener and avoid speaking out of turn and causing suffering through your speech and interactions.

Refrain from things that cloud the mind

This principle tells you to stay away from things that could blur your mind like alcohol and drugs. It is highly related to clear and alert mind, that can focus properly.
